

Building Global Networks in Support of New Mobility

Program site: <http://www.knowledge.newmobility.org>

Transport, new mobility networking

These groups and programs all share a strong transportation component and sustainability core.

Pointing the way to new mobility

More general sustainability networking – Leading examples

While the focus here is specifically on networking programs, sites and sources that will be useful in support of new mobility initiatives and approaches, it is important that we also keep track of some of the outstanding programs that are trying to provide active links and working relationships in the broader sustainable development and climate policy sphere. Here are the first sample of these programs that we have selected for attention and your comment:

1. 350
2. Climate Action Network \(CAN\)
3. Development Gateway
4. Earth Day Network \(EDN\)
5. Global Footprint Network
6. iNSnet Foundation
7. International Institute for Sustainable Development
8. LEAD - Leadership for Environment and Development
9. New American Dream
10. Planet2025 Network
11. Sustainable Cities Net

A possible shortcoming of this outreach effort at this time, is that we are working in this first instance entirely with English language sites, albeit a number of them have provision for on-line translation as well as offering materials in a range of other languages. It is our view that we or others can get to the language challenges once some useful progress has been registered in the present push for better English language networking.
